Parties present and represented by counsel.

Parties to proceed by proffer.

Court addresses defendant. Statutory factors. Government begins with presumption based on charges. Evidence appears strong, and has not be countered. Nature of background, criminal history is lengthy. Evidence is that home plan is not sufficient in that there has been recent drug activity at the home address. Health issues can be addressed while in custody. Court finds clear and convincing evidence that defendant is a danger to the community, and there is no viable home plan. Court advises defendant of appeal rights. Defendant remanded.

Adjourned.
